WHY THE

U. S. Washing Machine Is the Best.

BECAUSE

It is the only Rotary Washer that has revolving steel ball gearing, reducing the friction and thus making the machine light running and almost noiseless. The gear wheel turns right or left, the pin wheel or dasher reverses automatically, turning the clothes back and forth through the hot soap suds and cleaning them without rubbing them to pieces. Over One Hundred Thousand in use. The U. S. Machine have no equal because they wash clean.

MARINES SHUT OUT OF BASEBALL LEAGUE

At a meeting of the Baseball League yesterday afternoon, the application of the team of U. S. Marines for entrance into the league, was disallowed. H. M. Whitney, Jr., presided, and F. W. Thompson acted as secretary. The various clubs were represented as follows:

Elks—Richardson and Gorman.
H. A. C.—Gleason and Williams.
Punahou—Carter and Steere.
Mailes—Luhisen and Crook.
Kamehameha—Wise and Lemon.
Following is the report of the special committee which, upon being adopted, shut out the marines:

To the Chairman and Members of the Honolulu Baseball League.

Gentlemen:—At the meeting held to consider the application of the Marine baseball team, held at 5 p. m., February 16, 1904, at the Elks' hall, were present the managers of the five teams, together with Lieut. Harlee, representative of the Marine baseball team. In the meeting Lieut. Harlee advanced the proposition as follows:

"The Marine baseball team be allowed to enter the League on equal footing with the other teams."

In discussion, the question of what interest the other teams already had in the grounds was met by another proposition, viz: That his team be allowed twelve months to pay in the amount already earned by the other teams, together with interest at eight per cent, and in case of failure to do so they were to forfeit their interest in the seventy per cent to be earned this year, which your committee thinks they are not in any way entitled to.

We met this proposition with a counter proposition to the effect that your committee would accept the application in accordance with their original proposition, which was that we guarantee them their actual expenses as they were not looking forward to entering the League as a money-making institution. Your committee went so far as to offer them the sum of three hundred dollars ($300), which was not favored by them.

Your committee therefore reports against the admission of the Marine baseball team to the Honolulu Baseball League.

WOODS NOT REFEREE

Neither Professor Bert Woods, of Woods Institute nor his brother Jess will referee the boxing contest next Saturday night. They both take a great interest in the game and would like to accommodate the public as well as the management of the Orpheum theatre, yet they feel that because of their business relations, it will be best for them to view the fight from the audience.

Weday has said that he is willing to referee the match and it is thought that he will be satisfactory to both of the principals. Weday is popular with the masses and he has never been known to do a dishonest thing in connection with boxing, so it is thought that he will be the man finally decided upon.

DRAWS COLOR LINE

Sliva, the Portuguese wonder with the rotary motion, who has been practicing with Dave Barry and therefore learning valuable points in the fist art, is certainly a diplomat, if his understanding of fighting etiquette is somewhat at fault.

An attempt was being made yesterday to match him with Ulysses Harris, the colored boxer. The question was put straight to him. After scratching his head for a moment, he waved his hand and said: "I draw the color line."

BENGAL WANTED HELP.

The vessels lying at Kaula ports loading sugar have been experiencing a very rough time during the recent storm.

The Star of Bengal, lying at Makena, must have been in some danger last Saturday night. It is reported that all hands wore life-preservers. The vessel also burned blue lights as a signal to the steamer Nihau to stand by her.

The Nihau was having troubles of her own, however, and had to stand out to sea.

The master, Captain Thompson, accordingly signalled back to the windjammer that he would do so but at a distance.

WORMWOOD

Editor Evening Bulletin:—Colonel Fitch concludes his humorous and somewhat original reflections "Aloha Hawaii" characteristically.

"Brilliant but bedraggled" would appropriately epitomize his biography. Time was when Leland Standford's golden glitter, so resonant, of profitable monopoly, jaundiced the vision of this rhetorical genius, as anon did other similar potential influences on divers occasions. His mind processes have given evidence of the same vacillation, as his corporeal migrations indicated unrest. Judged by these, his has been a purposeless life,—disappointing to self and friends. If Tom would give us the best thoughts derived of his experience, only, we could quite forgive, perhaps forget, the errors of wayward, selfish and ambitious youth.

But age should mellow one's philosophy no matter how refractory one's nature. Can it be possible that his views on labor are metallically tinted as of old? Is it method, or the bitterness born of madness with his perverse fate, with which old age has fixed this habit of perverting lofty, democratic ideals of thought. How unkind a fate!

To one who has followed the gyrations of the nomadic career of this patriarch eloquent closely, his word pictures are fraught with delightful suggestion, suggestive of better employment. But one never knows when he will stop over; pregnant with the daubing effects on some minor detail. While not absolutely destructive of the "tout ensemble" of the general subject, yet leaving an unpleasant impression,— suggestive of latent, senile, selfish corruption of instincts or spirit,—in one though brilliantly gifted, has probably never experienced sufficient serious contact with actual bread-winning to elevate and maintain his sublimer faculties, over a sordid perverted environment. He sees, so he writes, no cane-raising, minus oriental labor. No fur trade industry—but sugar. But he knows better,—that invention and human progress are immutable in fact as they are in law. Like a charred stump in the primeval forest, this honary veteran rears his seared but not serious scrawling deformities, to the sympathetic, regretful gaze of many erstwhile admirers; who love him for his better genius and personality; who would have rejoiced at his elevation to an exalted position on Fame's pedestal in his past higher plane of action; who realize that he has much of his pique to charge to his own cupidity and selfish indifference; and would now wish to see him possessed of better twilight wit; graced with more true sympathy for the substantial interests of the mass of his fellow-citizens,—more practical love for the fundamental preservation of those institutions of national happiness, which his eloquence has so often glorified, and burned with letters of undying patriotic fire, into the souls of more than one admirer.

And how Fame has coquetted with him:—how many times Fitch glanced longingly at its omnipresent yet illusive form; leaving this Maud Muller of the pioneer west, to warm his cockles with uncertain treadmill sympathy evoked by colossal, if not vernal, toadyism—at the dull hearthstone of Croesus, whose gold might corrupt, but never appreciate—never compensate the sacrifice.

It is well that the circulation of some current local journalism is limited principally to those more or less conversant with facts; otherwise the evil thereof would be duplex. Nothing could be more puerile than to circulate this reckless and obvious sophistry and calumny in channels where mere words fall signally to conceal ulterior motives. But it is absolutely suicidal to add to the ever-increasing crop of minor malcontents and critics, the more important disgust of men of fine intellect and influence. The tacit approval of such journalism may seem innocuous, but is liable not only to prove a boomerang, but to bring the house down on its supporters.

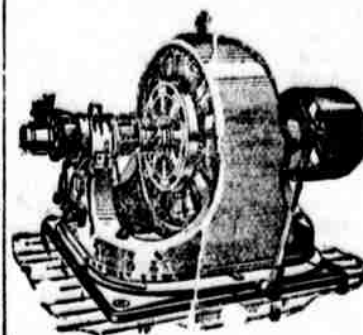

Depend upon it, Colonel Fitch has a host of admirers, who, though discounting his warped views of detail, still, in a general way, respect his unbiased judgment, and pungent humor. Again it goes without saying that one sufficiently influential to secure appointment from an executive of opposite political faith, in carrying away from his judicial experiences a contempt and loathing for the prevailing provincial hog, is bearing a heaven of dangerous possibilities, only limited by the sphere of that influence and acquaintance which secured for him such exceptional preferment. Judge Galbraith has a host of mainland admirers, and not a few island friends, who, while not crediting him with superhuman attributes, believe in him and respect him. It would seem the motto of these assassins of reputation is the old frontier maxim, "No Indian so good as a dead Indian," and in order for the eminent malhith to attain the plaudits of the grafters' guild, it is necessary to go home in a casket draped with the American flag and post-mortem laurel wreaths. Thus does provincial conceit keep pace with insular perspicacity. The army of lesser lights who have felt the fangs with this poison and survived to reach home and friends, is a legion of growing dimensions, and if its influence is not appreciated now and is but indifferently respected, it nevertheless will be felt in the course of events.

Motherhood

MOTHERHOOD is the reward nature bestows upon healthy womanhood. Women whose vitality has been sapped by disease cannot safely give birth to children. In pregnancy and in childbirth weakness of the mother is revealed in the pain and agony she suffers.

This great medicine drives out every vestige of inflammation and weakness, and gives tone and strength to the delicate organs which nurture the child. The pains of pregnancy are banished by Wine of Cardui, and miscarriages, which blast so many fond mother's hopes, are prevented. Flooding, which so often occurs after childbirth, is corrected when Wine of Cardui is used during pregnancy.

Wine of Cardui babies are healthy babies, because, during the months of pregnancy, the mother is able to give them necessary vitality and strength.

With these facts presented to American women no expectant mother should be satisfied without the re-inforcement that Wine of Cardui will give her. Every mother should be able to treat herself in her home with this valuable medicine.

Wine of Cardui can be secured from any druggist at $1.00 a bottle.

I am the mother of seven children and while in pregnancy with the first six suffered untold misery until they were born. One month before the seventh was born I began to take a bottle of Wine of Cardui, which gave me relief after taking three doses. I used the remainder of the bottle until the birth of the child, and was stouter in three days after the birth than I was in a month after the birth of either of the first six. I am 29 years old.
